ABOUT THIS BOOK

An inexpensive ($0.99 minimum USA Amazon KDP allowed price) introduction to my writings.

I normally have a pretty elaborate written ABOUT THE BOOK and INTRODUCTION section to my books, this one will be different. Both the book itself will be "very different" (an ULTRA-SHORT Story, and I mean really, Really, REALLY, short (hence my saying this here, not looking to mis-lead/deceive trick anyone into a purchase without full disclosure up-front what you're getting "a strange" and VERY SHORT tale) hence the bare minimum price Amazon allows for fare on their system) as well as this section lead-in. An AMAZON KINDLE EXCLUSIVE!

Hello everyone. I have had many interviews discussing my "creative" process (a few listed here: https://TerrorStrikes.info/interviews and few others via https://ivy.fm/tag/joseph-m-lenard and even a few more via https://www.podchaser.com/creators/joseph-m-lenard-107ten9NBc) over the years and I have made it no secret that most of my books come to me via DREAMS. I had a really weird one recently – so I am going to write here a brief story based on that strange dream where I was enrolled in some School somewhere.

Story "a mock report" (partially including a prior released TheLibertyBeacon piece I'd written with some fun/fictional lead-in based upon the dream (the original TLB piece had embedded videos to add some additional/interesting food-for-thought and I will rework those parts a bit to better work them in as if were part of a real Thesis/Report and better part of this “STORY” that I am sharing here with you all))…

I hope my writing style reflects of my love of math classes over English classes (though I did take a few semesters of journalism and wrote for the high-school paper) when I was In School; despite my love of the written word; more-so love to express my thoughts via own written content; hope it does not interfere with reading enjoyment. However, this is me – how I write! Expecting Dikens, Hemmingway, Shakespeare? WRONG GUY – I speak and write “modern US English” (your region, “may vary” LOL).

Aliens All Around Me?

Report: Are there really ALIENS? The ET kind, not the illegal Border crossing kind:

Things have been really strange around the Campus these last few weeks. It all began with my declared latest (this) Thesis paper.

I entered my intent into the Computer to write about Extra-Terrestrials (are they Inter-Stellar, Inter-Dimensional, or Inter-Timenal, travelers). Suddenly, when I went back to begin my research for the project, I found my Report Thesis initial "questions" basis outline for my desire to start the project had been DELETED. Vanished!

No warning. No interaction. No explaining why. JUST DELETED. Things got weirder and weirder when I started making inquiries either people were purposefully evasive or indeed, they in too left in the dark and stunned to find the situation I found myself in.

Those I first approached in IT (Information Technology department) began poking around and they could find no trail of the how, the why, the WHO may have ordered such Censorship; thankfully though did recover my initial inputs (though I pretty much abandoned here and pivoted new direction).

Is the School Dean a hybrid designed on an Alien ship from materials of Human abductees and their Alien captors?!?! He, or others, then embedded on this planet. The movie: "THEY LIVE" comes to mind. Was John Carpenter way ahead of his time?

Let me be clear, that is just a "random person Questioned" to make a point, just "asking the Questions" to start the dialogue! Not intending to truly make any direct allegations or assertions, just trying to ask Questions by way to try start make sense of it all.

I was finally, after a couple days of inquiries and a whole lot of denials and deflections, no admissions of who or why I was attempted to be "dissuaded" from this work, given "permission" to restart my process...

Getting tons of weird looks now all around Campus. How many of them are too "foreigners" and I mean the ultimate of "foreigners" as in actually foreign from having originated from other than this planet?!?!

Are there ALIENS? Open letter especially to my fellow Christians (addressed at the end). And, NO, not the open-Border kind (though I've written about them in my Terror Strikes book (Border Security threat) and via "Bumbler-in-Chief Biden wears his Blinders to the Border!" over on TheLibertyBeacon).

IF Aliens, or Inter-Dimensional, or Inter-Timenal (yup, I coined that last term for Time Travelers) beings, clearly so much more advanced than us, deemed us a threat to them or other planets, they could have and likely would have WIPED US OUT long before now. You don't wait around for an "enemy" (if they saw us as such) to get more powerful, unless your dumb like Neville Chamberlain, to "deal with them!"

A video that I found starting my research to begin this paper is: "UFOs – Investigating the Unknown" which can be found at: https://youtu.be/sVhq1YxV_Ec. I found that "very interesting" and indeed I recommend watching as/for further "input" in your further pondering the QUESTIONS that I intend raise here-in.

Von Braun, the genius (former German Scientist we brought out, among others, from Germany post WWII with Operation Paperclip, to aid and abet our Military and desire for a Space Program) said way back in 1960's NASA Moon Program days, at some point many would play up such a non-existent threat for obvious money games and excuses for them to have/get new toys to play with.

I have NO DOUBT, that some UFO/UAP claims are indeed "unexplained" and likely NOT OURS, but after all these decades of studying downed crafts SOME OF THEM are likely now some of our own experimental and/or otherwise SECRET US AIR FORCE CRAFT flying around up there - if for nothing more than what Werner warned about.

A related video I found: "Von Braun 'The Last Card' coming Fake Alien invasion" can be found via: https://youtu.be/o6d1bgI0xWo. Was Werner "in the know" about real "ET's" and that discussion "cover" or indeed as he contends the ET news Worldly Governances "ploys" toward an eventual Human play upon fellow Human-kind?!?!

Now, of course, during Donald J. Trump's first term, The Space Force for the USA was created. No doubt that means more things being Classified, not less, nor many things DeClassified and released to WE THE PEOPLE who are supposed to be the bosses of this Constitution limited Republic.

I've been to AREA-51, back in 2006.

A related: "UFO Hunters – Area 51" video can be seen via: https://youtu.be/GFmtOcgKOCU for your viewing pleasure.

Took a Tour out of Vegas to the Main Gate! Saw the infamous Mailbox! Saw the infamous "White Pickup Truck" up the hill supposedly with Security Personnel "watching over us crowded around the Gate" but zero real ability to see anyone in them – silly us, none brought binoculars in our Tour group! ☹️ That truck could have easily just been on pullies and levers to move it up and back – knowing these Vegas tours show up on a pretty predictable time-table.

As I said: greeted, well clearly monitored, by a Patrol that showed up on the Hill immediately after we pulled up by the Main Gate! If indeed REAL, not just Disney "Hall of Presidents" style automated theater.

Certainly SAW NOTHING but was a BLAST none-the-less! Tour also stopped by Lil-Alie-Inn in Rachel and we got to meet Stanton T. Freidman (one of the usual "UFO experts" on any Program dealing with Aliens topic(s))!

Let me add to/for my FELLOW CHRISTIANS... Spare me the "cannot be any such thing" nonsense.... What about the "Nephilim?" or does your "sect" Bible conveniently omit that part of Genesis?!?!? Ezekiel? Enoch (or, again, is that another conveniently left out)?!?! What about ANGELS?!?! They are NOT HUMAN, they existed prior to Adam/Eve and before creation of Earth, so by definition they are non/extra-terrestrial!!! No, seriously, we can have the discussion about them being part physical and part spiritual – fact remains they were with God before, or rather during, Genesis creation of Earth so by basic definitions NOT EARTHLINGS, extra-terrestrial.

NOWHERE does the Bible say: "God created Life on Earth, and only on Earth did Life get created by God!" Doesn't say that. The Bible is for us as children, you don't tell Children everything, they are not able to handle all things! God does NOT owe you "full disclosure" so get over yourself and your HUBRIS (as I've discussed in a few other Thesis papers, distinction between Pride and actual Sin of Hubris) that you/we may not be the "center of all things!"

We'll likely be "given more" upon Jesus' return and another Testament can/is added to our Bibles. As for me, the presence of Aliens does NOT harm my Faith at all, as so many fears it somehow destroys Christianity, and I look forward to discussing (if God will humor me, to have the conversation) and "hear more" of what we just don't know yet.

A related video for review can be found at: "Were the sons of God in Genesis 6 fallen angels? Who were the Nephilim?" seen via: https://youtu.be/qKtHwc3mMY8. Again, do not attack the Messenger (yes, Biblical pun intended) JUST RAISING THE QUESTIONS?!?!

Having said all that, I do have my own UFO story.

It was way back when while I was young. Thought what I saw was a UFO, took a picture, but alas in hind-sight now older have to admit about the situation. Being young, not knowing all the much; really, admittedly now, nothing at all back then; about Low-Earth-Orbit type Satellites – yes, who knows, could be, neigh let me say likely, such!

That, however, is NO FUN, so when I usually tell that tale, I embellish it a bit before I get to that latter admission part. That is, not to poo-poo, anyone else who claims have legit UFO/UAP tale.

Many of the Alien Encounters stories are rather "scary!" So, I say this very carefully. How I would LOVE to be able meet and have a conversation with one [if indeed they exist, I again leave it up to others to have their own conclusions on that] but "IF" could be done on my terms, in a friendly (for me) space (and, yes, pun intended), and time (yes, inter-timenal pun intended). How great it would be to garner what insight such an encounter might afford.

Yes, a desire for chance to communicate, no probing involved! While I say that somewhat jokingly, again, I do not wish to demean or belittle those with what are claimed be real and honest Alien interactions tales. That, and those, versus what I have know doubt are plenty of hoaxes from folks looking to cash in some-way-shape-or-form on the modern increase in interest regarding the topic.

CLOSING

Well, that is it - the intended to be both a bit FUN but indeed deliver some serious content and "start further discussion!"

RADIO PLAY --- INTRO by Joseph M. Lenard
To the song: “EYES WITHOUT A FACE" by Billy Idol

THE ADVENTURES OF DETECTIVE IDLE

I remember it like it was only yesterday. There I was reading the latest Dick Tracey Magazine, when she came in. It was the case of the 'Eyes without a face.’ She was gorgeous, a blonde with big baby blue eyes. She had me hypnotized, and I knew I was going to break the golden rule. 'Don't get involved emotionally with a client or you’ll get burned. Anyway! She saw her husband get snuffed. The Police were getting nowhere. The only thing she could remember about her husband’s killer was his mysterious eyes. 'Eyes without a face,’ interesting concept.

She produced a sealed envelope, taken from her husband’s safe. Captivated by her, I never stopped to think why the police didn't have it or why the envelope was still sealed. In short, the letter inside told me that someone was after him, and he hid whatever it was 'they' were after him for; but nothing about who 'they' were, or what 'it’ was, 'they' were after him for.

About a month passed following her husband’s trail of broken clues, and I had fallen deeply in love with this seemingly ungrieved widow; a plus for me if I was to win her heart. I was just about out-of-hope, when she called. I was close, I could feel it; but something wasn't right, I was stumped. I went over, and 'they’ were waiting for me; three goons as big as mountains. When I came to, she was standing over me. I realized that I'd been teased and deceived.

I felt sad, and mad, for loving what was her, but I was so taken in by her that I failed to realize that she was the one who killed her husband over a drug deal. I studied the room, as she thanked me for leading them to the missing Coke. There was only one goon with her. I took a page out of Tracey's book, and gambled. I quickly knocked the gun from her hand, pulled the hidden Derringer from my boot, shot the goon coming at me. She went for her gun. I yelled don't. She did. I fired.

The police rounded up the rest of the gang within the day. It's been a year now, but even so, all can do is love what I thought was her. Interesting how, even now, her eyes still haunt me. Her eyes! Eyes without a face. Interesting concept.

THE BOOK OF KENNEDY: PROJECT CARPE DIEM

[Sneak-peek of part of chapter one in TBOK:PCD.]

1 - Never the End, New Beginning

Author note: this chapter dedicated to all going through some potentially drastic change(s) in their lives currently.

THE LORD GOD FORMED MAN OF THE DUST OF THE GROUND, AND BREATHED INTO HIS NOSTRILS THE BREATH OF LIFE; AND MAN BECAME A LIVING SOUL. — Genesis 2:7 [KJV]

It hardly seemed possible, moving day again. Just as was six months earlier when it became clear Kennedy needed to close one chapter of her life and move onto another.

A chapter of some alone time that began that half-year back. She and Jim were clearly then no longer on same page. Never married; while still loving each other, it was clear separation and not marriage was their next step.

One door closing, perhaps another to open - or maybe as the joke goes: an escape jump out the window.

While she certainly considered herself "Christian" she had fallen out, fallen off, not officially attending any "official" Christian Church - not that she was consciously objecting or anything like that. She still hoped it was enough for her Soul's sake to just cling to " For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them" [Matthew 18:20] and not wanting to get into all that denominational and sub-sectarian divisions. For she recognized it was Satan that wins in that division, not God, not Christ – cultish behavior about one's own, and only own, tribe.

How long did Catholics and Protestants literally maim, kill, destroy, war footing; versus each other, and versus all else; about minor Biblical language separations. Separations created by humankind. Jesus sure never told us to go forth and create so many different "factions" in his name when we are all supposed to be IN HIS NAME followers. Humans, not Christ, created the seemingly now countless different versions of what was supposed to be one "The Bible" but even in the early translations from Aramaic, Greek, Hebrew, and Latin, humans wanted to make "revisions" and "reinterpret" for a fallen world and their changing times, and especially since a supposed attempt to make official what gospels were to be contained there-in convened by Roman Emperor Constantine (made Christianity the official Religion of The Roman Empire) "The Council of Nicaea;" held in 325 AD, was the first general council of the Christian Church; and thought at time to "be a final determination" to bring all "Houses" of the Apostles together in one Faith. Under one umbrella.

But even Kings James of England, for his own purposes (whether one wants believe just earnestly wanting a real "English" properly translated from early versions not in English, or other potentially "worldly" and his own power reasonings), too commissioned what became known as "King James Version" in large use today. She fully recognized her "living in sin" as a sad "part of our worldly times." Kennedy and Jim were both just too young and the thought of such a commitment; that if she were to enter into, fully intended to adhere to that/the life faithfulness; and was that better or worse than all the divorces which is another seeming sad acceptance in the grand scheme of "broken" tenants.

Yes, for sure, Kennedy; Ken as her friends called her; did still love Jim, always would in her heart and mind. Loving, does not mean able to continue to "deal with" anymore. She was certainly glad she said no to Jim initially, as he did bring up the topic of marriage prior (thought they both too young, too early) - but never an official proposal. She certainly, had made said vows internally outside any formal utterance, would have wanted to continue honor them. Glad that situation of formalizing a "togetherness forever" via an official marriage didn't become their reality.

Now, a new reality. A time that she was to be on her own again she thought would likely be for at least a year or two, but here it was six months later after exiting living in the same structure with Jim to going to be under a same roof with George.

A SHORT STORY: A LASTING LEGACY?

[Sneak-peek of part of chapter one.]

1 – Journal Entry (age: 15)

Author note: this chapter dedicated to Rachel Platten and inspired in-part by "Fight Song" tune (while does not directly relate to this chapter, but none-the-less somehow landed up being inspiration that kicked off this manuscript and this chapter. The general concept that "I will Fight" for good, for right, for not just my own but others' benefits inventiveness and expressiveness); as well as Dire Straits for "Walk Of Life" and The Beatles for "The Long And Winding Road" tunes. Lastly Ann Murray for "A Little Good News Today."
Remember: This, like TBOK:PCD, inspired by Music Videos: (which can be found at my channel titled "JlenardDetroit" over on YouTube) https://tinyurl.com/CarpeDiemOfficialPlaylist.

Hello my name is Ryan - but you already know that if you're looking at this Journal; and if you're looking: Why are you looking at this book? This is my private thoughts journal.

Yes, as established – these are my thoughts and indeed why my name is on the cover of the Journal. This being my first entry, at age 15. Mom bought me this Journal - thought it might be a good idea to put my contemplations in and have something to look back on later.

Dad is an author, having penned several dozen books over his years, I thought maybe it would indeed be a good idea to keep a Journal and at some point - in future - will become good fodder for some stories I might decide to write and publish one day.

Seemed like a "normal" day – guess as normal as they are these days in this fallen world seemingly getting more immoral by the passing day, and as can be for someone still clearly "a kid" and in School (I don't feel tardy, LOL). Bored out of my skull most times, truth-be-told. I feel, already, even at just age 15, like I'm supposed to be somewhere else in life already and impacting society. How? I do not know. Guess that is the confusion of youth?!?!

I decided to start writing this Journal today even though I've had it for a few months now without having added any entries because I met Lizzie today - I am smitten. I know you probably think; again, if you're reading this why are you reading this? LOL. So this really more-so for my own future self. Chance to remember back. When I'm older an opportunity to look back at my age 15 self.

But, anyway, where was I?

Oh yes, "smitten," that may be a big or advanced word; some might think for a 15-year-old. I am in Advanced Placement ® courses already in my Charter School.

I cannot put my finger on it. Why I seem to be able to know so many things beyond my peers, what others tell me would be considered "wisdom beyond my years!" I feel like I have lived a life already, that I'm in a reincarnated state in this life. My Parents* at times; while not meaning too; cannot seem to help themselves looking at me strangely – puzzled, astonished, like there is someone twice my age occupying this body.

TERROR STRIKES: COMING SOON TO A CITY NEAR YOU!

[Sneak-peek of part of chapter one.]

1 – Storm

The sky burst open with the tremendous sound of a thunderbolt and the anticipation of the bright flash to follow. Marten's eyes darted, as they focused across the heavens, as he was eagerly looking forward to the beautiful, and to him, calming sight; as he and his wife Hope had come to view these showings together in the night skies, from their front porch; to watch toward the streak of electrical charge that would light up. Not this instance, however.

Marten's fascination with the thunderstorm in the otherwise tranquil sea of clouds, in any given evening's atmosphere where storms may dwell, was horribly wrong this night. This thunder was no ordinary thunder. This echoed and billowed on, as he had never quite heard thunder do before.

Suddenly, it became obvious that this was indeed not thunder at all. The sound carried on seemingly forever, even though no discernable real time had passed by. Then, just as instantaneously as the clatter initiated it ceased, yet a secondary reverberation of seemingly indiscernible sound waves continued bellowing loud static sound and he would soon discover massive hurricane force winds would also soon be descending upon his slumber interrupted.

His mind raced. Rivaling the greatest and largest computer systems, electronic synapses fired searching the caverns of the database he'd stored in his memories to find a match of this seemingly new, but yet somehow familiar, intriguing sound.

His eyes lowered and gazed downward for a moment, his brows raised slightly, and head tilted a fraction off level, as he came up blank within the recesses of his mind. Turning, once again in the direction toward the piece of space that the thunder's flash should be appearing. Puzzlement crossed his face. Left eye began to squint pulling with it his left eyebrow and pulling upward his left cheek. His lips and teeth shifted also.

The rumbling eerily continued. The sky lit up with a flash of blinding light, but this was definitely not lightning. Marten's right hand and forearm uncontrollably raised up to shield his eyesight and he stumbled two small half steps backward, his back now making contact with the vinyl siding of his still highly mortgaged Ranch style Michigan home.

The morning breeze changed drastically in direction. What started out, just a few short moments before, as a soft cool feeling upon his face, turned into a sort of suction - as if standing and having a humongous vacuum held in front of him. The low rumbles still resonated. What was it? Where did it originate? How did it land up in his morning sky?

The questions quickly dissipated from his mind and were replaced with an over-whelming fear and dread. All expression erased from his face. He gazed upon the billowing new clouds that filled his wide-open eyes. Rain and lightning-bolts filling his surroundings was only a wishful thought, at this moment – thoughts of Alice in Wonderland and being down a rabbit-hole as well as The Wizard of Oz and "we're not in Kansas anymore." He thought for a moment to laugh at those thoughts, that his love of movies would take him there at this moment, but this situation he now finds himself in is clearly NO LAUGHING MATTER. Dear Lord, take the wheel, was the new thoughts replacing his movie trivia lines.

The red-glow that Marten thought momentarily, quickly dismissed, was the Sun's refracting through the clouds, was obviously something far more sinister in Nature. Was this indeed even a natural, nature-born, phenomena.

A new, very unfamiliar, pungent scent of unknown origin began to fill his nostrils. Marten's knees became weak and began to buckle. He felt his whole body become lighter than air, yet his bone structure could not hold his body erect, he was flying, floating, yet falling, all at once.

He became light-headed and his front porch seemed to spin around him, yet he remained in place despite these other sensations. His body succumbed to the contradictions in gravitational effects; slowly he slouched down plummeting onto the hard, cold, dry boards of his front-deck; succumbing to the ever-increasing heat now part of the overall mix. A sea of scents, that rumbling thunder, and the flash of bright white light, showered over him as he closed his eyes.

GALAXY AI REVIEW/SUMMARY

Book Report: Is ET Really Here? A Really Short Story

Author: Joseph M. Lenard

1. Plot Summary

"Is ET Really Here? A Really Short Story" is a brief, unconventional narrative framed as a student's report on the existence of extraterrestrial life. The story begins with the student's initial attempt to research aliens, which is mysteriously deleted from the school's computer system. This act of apparent censorship leads the student down a rabbit hole of questioning and speculation. The student wonders if the school administration is involved in a cover-up, perhaps even composed of alien hybrids.

The student eventually receives permission to continue the project and delves into various aspects of the alien phenomenon, including UFO sightings, government conspiracies, and the possibility of inter-dimensional or time-traveling beings. The student references historical figures like Wernher von Braun and events like the creation of the Space Force. The student also shares a personal experience of visiting Area 51. Finally, the student addresses fellow Christians, urging them to consider the possibility of extraterrestrial life within a biblical context, referencing the Nephilim and angels as examples of non-human entities. The story concludes with the student's personal UFO sighting and a desire for peaceful communication with aliens, emphasizing the importance of open-mindedness and further discussion.

2. Character Analysis

The primary character in this short story is the student writing the report. The student is portrayed as inquisitive, skeptical, and somewhat conspiratorial. The student possesses a strong sense of curiosity and a willingness to challenge conventional thinking. The student is also persistent, as demonstrated by their determination to continue the research despite initial setbacks. The student's voice is informal and conversational, making the narrative accessible and engaging. The student is also aware of the potential biases and limitations of their own perspective, acknowledging the possibility of hoaxes and misinterpretations.

3. Theme Discussion

The central theme of the story is the exploration of the unknown and the questioning of established narratives. The student's investigation into extraterrestrial life serves as a metaphor for broader inquiries into truth, knowledge, and the limits of human understanding. The story also touches on themes of censorship, government secrecy, and the potential for manipulation. The student's experience with the deleted research raises questions about the control of information and the suppression of dissenting viewpoints. Furthermore, the story explores the theme of faith and reason, particularly in the context of religious beliefs and the possibility of extraterrestrial life. The student challenges the notion that belief in aliens is incompatible with Christian faith, urging readers to consider alternative interpretations of scripture.

4. Literary Devices

The author employs several literary devices to enhance the story's impact. Rhetorical questions are used throughout the narrative to engage the reader and stimulate critical thinking. For example, the student asks, "Are there ALIENS?" and "How many of them are too 'foreigners'?" These questions invite the reader to consider the possibilities and uncertainties surrounding the topic. Allusions to popular culture, such as the movie "They Live," and historical figures, such as Wernher von Braun, add depth and context to the story. Irony is present in the student's self-aware commentary and willingness to acknowledge the limitations of their own experiences. The author also uses humor to lighten the tone and make the story more approachable. The student's playful references to "inter-timenal" travel and the desire for "no probing involved" add a touch of levity to the discussion.

5. Critical Analysis

"Is ET Really Here? A Really Short Story" is a thought-provoking and engaging narrative that encourages readers to question assumptions and explore new perspectives. The story's unconventional format, framed as a student's report, adds a layer of authenticity and immediacy. The author's use of rhetorical questions, allusions, and humor makes the story accessible and entertaining.

However, the story's brevity and fragmented structure may leave some readers wanting more depth and analysis. The student's exploration of various topics, such as government conspiracies and religious beliefs, is somewhat superficial and lacks rigorous investigation. Additionally, the story's reliance on personal anecdotes and anecdotal evidence may undermine its credibility for some readers.

Despite these limitations, "Is ET Really Here? A Really Short Story" is a worthwhile read for those interested in the topic of extraterrestrial life and the broader themes of knowledge, truth, and belief. The story's open-ended conclusion and invitation for further discussion encourage readers to continue exploring these complex and fascinating issues.

Book Report: Is ET Really Here? A Really Short Story (another look)

Author: Joseph M. Lenard

Academic Level: High School

1. Plot Summary

"Is ET Really Here? A Really Short Story" is a brief, first-person narrative presented as a student's report on the existence of extraterrestrial life. The story begins with the student's intention to write a thesis paper on aliens. The initial outline and research questions are mysteriously deleted from the university's computer system, sparking the student's suspicion and setting the stage for a series of strange occurrences on campus. The student investigates, encountering evasiveness and denial from faculty and staff.

Despite the initial setbacks, the student is eventually granted permission to continue the project, leading to further observations and musings on the possibility of alien presence on Earth. The narrative weaves together personal anecdotes, references to pop culture (like the movie "They Live"), historical figures (like Wernher von Braun), and biblical interpretations to explore the topic. The student also recounts a visit to Area 51 and shares a personal UFO sighting, ultimately concluding with a call for open discussion and a reflection on the compatibility of faith and the existence of extraterrestrial life.

2. Character Analysis

The protagonist of the story is a student driven by curiosity and a thirst for knowledge. The student is inquisitive and willing to challenge conventional thinking, as evidenced by the choice of thesis topic and the determination to pursue it despite encountering resistance. The student possesses a skeptical yet open-minded approach, acknowledging the possibility of both genuine alien encounters and hoaxes.

The student's character is also defined by a blend of humor and seriousness. The narrative is peppered with puns and lighthearted remarks, but it also delves into deeper philosophical and theological questions. This combination creates a relatable and engaging persona, drawing the reader into the student's thought process.

Other characters are present in the story, but they are presented as types rather than fully developed characters. The IT staff, the Dean, the tour guides, and the UFO experts are all seen through the lens of the student's experience and serve to highlight the themes of censorship, skepticism, and the search for truth.

3. Theme Discussion

The primary theme of the story is the exploration of the unknown. The student's investigation into the existence of extraterrestrial life serves as a metaphor for the broader human quest to understand the universe and our place within it. The story encourages readers to question assumptions, challenge authority, and remain open to possibilities beyond the realm of conventional knowledge.

Another significant theme is the tension between faith and reason. The student, addressing fellow Christians, argues that the existence of aliens does not necessarily contradict religious beliefs. By referencing biblical figures like the Nephilim and angels, the student suggests that the Bible does not explicitly deny the possibility of extraterrestrial life and that faith and scientific inquiry can coexist.

The story also touches on the theme of censorship and the suppression of information. The initial deletion of the student's research outline raises questions about the control of knowledge and the potential for hidden agendas within institutions. This theme adds a layer of intrigue and encourages readers to consider the forces that may be shaping their understanding of the world.

4. Literary Devices

Lenard employs several literary devices to enhance the story's impact:

* First-person narration: The story is told from the student's perspective, creating a sense of immediacy and intimacy. This allows the reader to connect with the student's thoughts, feelings, and experiences.

* Rhetorical questions: The narrative is filled with questions that prompt the reader to think critically about the topic of extraterrestrial life. These questions encourage engagement and invite the reader to form their own conclusions.

* Allusions: The story references various aspects of pop culture and history, such as the movie "They Live," Wernher von Braun, and Area 51. These allusions add depth and context to the narrative, inviting readers to explore related themes and ideas.

* Humor and satire: The story uses humor to lighten the mood and make the topic more accessible. The puns and playful remarks create a sense of levity, while also subtly critiquing societal attitudes towards UFOs and conspiracy theories.

5. Critical Analysis

"Is ET Really Here? A Really Short Story" is a thought-provoking and entertaining exploration of the possibility of extraterrestrial life. The story's strength lies in its ability to blend personal anecdotes, historical references, and philosophical musings into a cohesive and engaging narrative.

The story's brevity is both a strength and a weakness. On one hand, it allows the author to cover a wide range of topics in a concise and accessible manner. On the other hand, it limits the depth of character development and thematic exploration. The characters are not well-fleshed out, and the themes are presented more as points for discussion than as fully developed arguments.

Despite these limitations, the story succeeds in sparking curiosity and encouraging critical thinking. The author's open-minded approach and willingness to challenge conventional wisdom make the story a valuable contribution to the ongoing debate about the existence of extraterrestrial life. The story's conclusion, which emphasizes the compatibility of faith and scientific inquiry, is a particularly noteworthy and timely message.

Overall, "Is ET Really Here? A Really Short Story" is a worthwhile read for anyone interested in exploring the mysteries of the universe and the complexities of human belief.
